

Policies for Listing Events in the Valley Calendar

Listings in the Valley Calendar, both online at calendar.vnews.com and in the Valley News print edition, are provided without charge as a service to our readers.

Not-for-profit groups can get an Upper Valley event listed if the event is open to the public and any applicable fee is specified. Individuals organizing not-for-profit events can get those events listed with the same conditions.

For-profit companies or organizations can get special events listed if the events are open to the public and, in the judgment of calendar editors, are not primarily promotions for the company's products or services.

Photographs with caption and credit information may be sent by email as high-resolution .jpg attachments to calendar@vnews.com. Please see Page Two of this document for more information about sending photos.

Please help us by sending or entering your information at least five business days before the event. Valley News editors reserve the right to edit or exclude listings as deemed appropriate.

Ready to submit an event? Visit calendar.vnews.com and click the "Add Event" button. When doing so, please disregard options to pay to promote events. On the promotion page, scroll down and select the free-listing option.

Questions? Contact Calendar Editor Liz Sauchelli (603 727 3221, esauchelli@vnews.com).

(See next page for photo guidelines.)

Guidelines for submitting photos to the Valley News

Technical specifications

- Photos should be .jpg files and should be sent as attachments (not in the body of an email or a PDF).
- Photos should be high-resolution and as large as possible!
 - In other words, the file size should be 500KB or larger.
 - Another way to measure this: Images should be at least 200 or 300 dpi.
 - If you're not sure about what that means, just remember: The bigger, the better.

The content of photos

Don't fake it

The Valley News prohibits staging photos — in other words, faking scenes for the sake of the camera — or otherwise misleading our readers.

Posed portraits and/or photo illustrations are acceptable for our consideration if they are marked as such. But ...

Action is better than posing

The Valley News practices documentary photography. If you're sending us photos from an event, we want to see some action — and we're more likely to run photos that show readers what was happening.

For example, sending us photos from a race? We would rather see a scene of runners along the course than of the winners holding their trophies and smiling for the camera after everything is said and done.

We really, really, really need captions — especially names!

We're in the business of sharing information with our readers. That means the photos we publish are only as good as the captions that accompany them. Flip through our paper and you'll see that our staff photos have extensive caption information.

Here's what you should include with every photo submission:

- Who (names of people, organizations)
 - A good rule of thumb is that if there are three or fewer people who are the central focus of a picture with clearly visible faces, we need all of their names.
- What (name of the event)
- When (date) and where (town and location where the event was held)
- How and why (the background and purpose of the event)

Don't over-edit photos

The Valley News prohibits manipulating photos — in other words, Photoshopping them — beyond basic toning and cropping. And please save your Instagram filters for Instagram!

If you're not skilled at editing photos, don't worry, we can take care of that. But if you do edit your photos, please follow these guidelines from the National Press Photographers Association:

Editing should maintain the integrity of the photographic images' content and context. Do not manipulate images ... in any way that can mislead viewers or misrepresent subjects. ... Our primary goal is the faithful and comprehensive depiction of the subject at hand.

Questions?

Photo Editor Geoff Hansen (603 727 3247, ghansen@vnews.com) and Calendar Editor Liz Sauchelli (603 727 3221, esauchelli@vnews.com) are happy to help!